

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election clearly illustrates why media consolidation threatens free access to information.

Media consolidation prevents having a free press. It's laughable to think that Americans are called on to be outraged that certain other countries are subject to propaganda.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. It's vital that we get more substantive news that has been examined by people with differing points of view. We need to try to get closer to describing accurately what is going on instead of trying to pick and choose information in such a way as to mislead listeners.

Media ownership rules are needed to prevent action that Sinclair Broadcasting intends to take. Thank you.
